Expanding columns, construction motivate 1971 youth to explore maze of creativity

Distinctive yet unified, the individual stones combine to create an intricate maze, a panorama of expanding columns. Encompassing the confusing network of buildings, the majestic pillars form the foundation of Highland High. But this outer maze of structures cannot mask the maze of personalities within — 1550 students striving to be unique and creative. Motivated by the completion of a circular fieldhouse, athletes enthusiastically perform original moves. An aura of creativity overcomes teen-age actors and actresses eagerly awaiting their first presentation in a spacious auditorium. As the separate stones merge into tall, strong columns, the students merge into one, tall and strong. The youth of 1971 is inspired to explore beyond the realms of high school life. beyond the ordinary and insignificant, into A MAZE OF CREATIVITY.

Columns of maze-like stones dominate the reconstructed Senior Court, where Seniors Dave DeMuth, Gary Ciochina, and Romie Sidabras relax between classes.

Each school day is a portion of life, a maze of varied activities . . . hurrying to complete an assignment, anticipating lunch, worrying about personal appearance.

Individuals create, exchange thoughts in maze of activities

In the additional classrooms of a north wing once marred by fire, young minds unlock the bewildering maze of thoughts confronting them each moment. They seek to learn and to create . . . an elaborate painting, a colorful chemical compound, a humorous English theme. With the third period revision, restless students and club members exchange creative ideas between the continuous maze of classes. In the cycle of time, the involved individuals gain knowledge and achieve a broader outlook on life. Like stones fashioning the complex design of a column, they produce A MAZE OF CREATIVITY. The youth of 1971 is inspired to walk the halls of the school, winding pathways through a maze of buildings, with enriched vigor, with the anticipation of new experiences, and with the intense desire to create . . . the one means to true self-satisfaction.

 $Accepting the {\it first place trophy in float competition, Sophomore Pat Mongaraz, class president, experiences the satisfaction that rewards successful creative efforts.}$

While attempting to outmaneuver his opponent in the challenging maze of sports, a Trojan athlete is also impelled to improve his individual talents.

Through various stitches, crafts student Junior Barb Dvorscak transforms brightly-colored yarn into a rug for the Christmas exhibit in the library showcase.

Rebuilt classrooms relieve two-year cramped conditions

As the doors opened for the 1970-1971 school year, students found a maze of newly-constructed facilities. Eighteen rebuilt classrooms accommodated classes which had formerly met in cramped quarters, due to the 1968 Christmas fire. While physics and chemistry students utilized new laboratory equipment, band and choral classes occupied rooms with four elevated levels. The refurnished Senior Court allowed seniors to reoccupy their domain when not in class, and carpeted, three-tiered lecture rooms provided space for club meetings and faculty programs.

> Backdrops suspended from the ceiling await to be put in proper position as the stage approaches completion.

With the completion of the new walkway between the business and English wings, students gather to talk and enjoy the good weather.

During the construction of the auditorium, metal frames transformed into plush, multi-color seats for the viewing of school productions.

Following the curvature of the fieldhouse's circular pattern, the freshly-laid sidewalk begins the exterior landscaping design of the school.

In order to finish the physics lab room by the completion date, a construction worker begins to adjust the plumbing facilities.

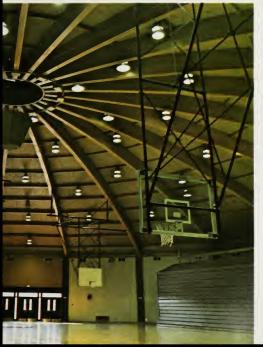

Curving to form the spacious dome ceiling, a maze of lights and wooden beams highlight the architectural design of the fieldhouse.

Carpenters' strike delays construction of school auditorium

Anticipating the completion of school additions, students continued to build their knowledge while general industry strikes continued to interrupt construction. November 1 marked the opening of all facilities. The auditorium, with an orchestra pit and a 59 foot stage, enabled the music and drama departments to present concerts, plays, and the annual operetta. Housing all indoor athletic events, the beamed-ceiling fieldhouse, with a press box and three locker rooms, opened for the basketball season.

Pep rally replaces cancelled bonfire; Sarah Barr reigns over Homecoming

Due to a heavy rainfall, an indoor pep rally, held in the junior high school's gymnasium, replaced the traditional Homecoming bonfire. Centering their speeches on the offense and defense of the squad, Senior gridmen Dave Bolsega, Dave DeMuth, and Terry Seljan also promoted the Homecoming spirit. The attention then switched to the announcement of the Homecoming court. Senior Denise Nichols, Booster Club president, introduced the nominees as they entered the gym. Principal Mr. Robert Day's crowning of Sarah Barr as queen climaxed the events of the evening.

Taking advantage of good blocking, Senior quarterback Dave DeMuth fakes a hand-off and then maneuvers himself to throw a pass.

Capturing first place, the sophomore class float "Blow Their Minds" displays united effort on the part of the class members.

Excited over her new title, 1970 Homecoming Queen Sarah Barr smiles while being introduced during the half-time ceremonies.

With the club members walking next to their special entry, the Future Homemakers of America's, "Eat 'Em Up," depicts the Homecoming theme of "The Great West."

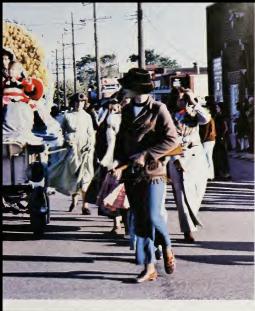

After leading cheers for the first half of the Homecoming game, Varsity Captain Judy Silverman, senior, enjoys the band's half-time performance.

Homecoming finalists Julie Mikula, Cindy Carroll, and Melinda Jones express their happiness as Romie Sidabras escorts Queen Sarah Barr to receive her crown.

Homecoming events follow 1970 theme, 'The Great West'

Although October 9 started with rain, the sun broke through the clouds and the 1970 Homecoming festivities began. With a 1:30 p.m. dismissal, students finished parade entries. At 4 p.m., the caravan, led by the Marching Trojan Band, departed from the Plaza Lanes. "The Great West," the Homecoming theme, supplied ideas for creative floats and cars. At 7:30 p.m., the gridmen met the Merrillville Pirates in a conference match. With a 26-0 victory, the game ended and the alumni gathered in the library for a coffee hour. Students attended the aftergame dance in the cafetorium.

Mississippi River sets scene for 1970 operetta 'Showboat'

For the 1970 operetta, performed on May 7, 8, and 9, members of the choir presented the musical, "Showboat." Written by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II, the story centered on the lives of Magnolia and Ravenal. On board the "Cotton Blossom," the river gambler Ravenal, played by Senior Doyle Banks, fell in love with Magnolia, portrayed by Polores Stepp. Through songs and dances, the characters of "Showboat" depicted life on the Mississippi River between 1880 and 1927.

Tenderly holding hands, Senior Doyle Banks, portraying Ravenal, sings "You Are Love" to his girl Magnolia, played by Dolores Stepp.

Guzzling down a drink. Jeb, portrayed by Steve Wargo, and his sidekick Backwoodsman Mike Grych sit and watch a gala performance on board the "Cotton Blossom."

Queenie, played by Lynn Tolley, expresses her true feelings about her no good husband Joe, as she sings "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man."

Looking through the namecards, Paula Murn and her guest search for their own special butterfly before entering the decorated ballroom.

Junior Debbie Tomcsi and her escort, Bob Brucer, pause for a few minutes to get a better look at the oriental garden of everlasting life.

Chosen as Prom Queen and King, Seniors Dana Hartman and Dave Bolsega begin their reign over the 1970 Prom.

Oriental paradise of 'Shangri-La' transforms school

Japanese fish ponds and gardens of cherry blossoms created the oriental paradise of "Shangri-La" for the 1970 Prom. Shades of purple transformed the cafetorium into a ballroom and couples waltzed to the music of the "Big Band of Bill Thomas." The crowning of Seniors Dave Bolsega and Dana Hartman as prom royalty climaxed the evening. Scenes changed and couples experienced a new atmosphere at the Red Lantern, on the shores of Lake Michigan. Dancing to the sound of "The Soul Facsimile," couples ended their day in the world of "Shangri-La."

Schwamberger takes Junior Miss title; Highland hosts German exchange student

Along with seven seniors from Highland High, three girls from Illiana Christian High School vied for the title of Highland's Junior Miss. With the new requirement stating each contestant must be in the upper ten percent of her class, the girls also displayed poise, individual talents, and personal appearance at the December 5 pageant. Deena Schwamberger, after reciting a cutting from OLIVER and singing "Where Is Love?," became the sixth winner of the Jayceesponsored event. AFS exchange student Barbara Probst came to Highland from Bad Schusseceried, Germany. Attending school as a senior, Barbara adjusted to American customs while living with the Robert E. Day family. To prepare for graduation with the Class of 1971, Barbara studied Spanish, English, government, psychology, physical education, and United States History.

German foreign exchange student Barbara Probst hands literature papers to Senior Rich Russell during English class.

A jazz routine, a dramatic monologue . . . These enable Seniors Dana Hartman and Sally Ohm to capture first and second runners-up positions at the Junior Miss pageant.

While eating lunch in the cafeteria, Barbara Probst, senior, exchanges ideas in her conversation with fellow classmates.

Executives of the General Products Corporation Senior Mike Pigozzi, and Juniors George Gregory and Dave Pope discuss business dealings over drinks.

Drama department presents last play in school cafeteria

On November 19 and 20, drama students presented "The Solid Gold Cadillac," the first production of the year and the last held in the cafeteria. Senior Marlene Bosse played the role of Mrs. Laura Partridge, who uncovered the dishonest operations of four businessmen, Senior Mike Pigozzi and Juniors George Gregory, Geoff Lukas, and Dave Pope. Cathy Sumner, senior, narrated the modern-day fairy tale and told how Mrs. Partridge rose to fame in the General Products Corporation. Cramped stage conditions and inadequate facilities did not hamper the outcome of the play, as drama enthusiasts utilized make-up, costumes, and scenery to achieve a total effect.

Senior Marlene Bosse as Mrs. Partridge recommends a skilled hairdresser to her secretary Miss Shotgrave, portrayed by Junior Kay Young.

Acting as narrator of "The Solid Gold Cadillac," Senior Cathy Sumner summarizes the events of the play before the opening of Act Two.

Astounded by the questions of Juniors Debbie Fatinger, Doug Latta, and Dave Hruska, newspaper reporters, Mrs. Partridge denies rumors of her relationship with Mr. McKeever.

At the December 12 Turnabout, Seniors Linda Eldredge and Laura Hanrahan and their guests admire the Christmas tree, a standard decoration of the winter semi-formal.

During the band's intermission, Debbie Killam, Larry Bogusz, Pam Schau, and Alan Harshbarger relax between dances at "The Days of Wine and Roses."

Upon being announced as the 1971 Sweetheart Queen, Senior Kathie Schaller receives the congratulations of nominee Pat Thomas at the February 19 dance.

Candlelight, soft music, seasonal decor set atmosphere for annual winter dances

At the 1970 GAA Turnabout Dance, burgundy and pink decorations recreated "The Days of Wine and Roses" in the cafeteria and hallways. As the music from "Julie and the Classics" drifted over the Christmas scenes, couples danced and enjoyed the December 12 evening. Completing the splendor of the night, Seniors Marlene Bosse and Dave DeMuth accepted the crowns of Snow Queen and King. Sweethearts danced again at the Key Club Sweetheart Dance on February 19. Candlelights and crepe paper, along with the sound of "Manowac," set the mood for the couples to relax at the semi-formal evening "Under the Eiffel Tower." Crowned by Key Club President Iim Tarbuck, Senior Kathie Schaller reigned as Sweetheart Queen.

Recently-crowned as Snow Queen and King, Seniors Marlene Bosse and Dave DeMuth eniov a dance at the traditional GAA Turnabout.

At the Key Club Sweetheart Dance, Juniors John Willis and Nianne Popa share a quiet moment together while listening to the music of "Manowac."

Trojan cagers defeat Wildcats, Governors in Sectional games

As the traditional activity to increase spirit for basketball Sectionals, "Clash Day" marked the beginning of "Spirit Week." Tuesday, February 24, allowed students and teachers alike to regress to childhood with "Lick 'Em and Bust 'Em Day" as an excuse. Cheered on by the Booster Block, Lettermen, and other fans, the Trojan cagers defeated Hammond High, 62-57, in the first Sectional game. Occurring only once before in school history, the basketball team continued in Sectional competition by playing the Morton Governors on February 26. With a 70-56 win, the team earned the right to play Hammond Clark in the final game, but lost to the Pioneers, 87-78.

As participants in the "Spirit Week" activities, Juniors John Dunn and Archie Abatie resort to childhood antics during "Lick 'Em and Bust 'Em Day."

Facial expressions of Letterman Ken Whitaker, Lettergirl Lois Lebryk, and team member Randy Stockham depict relief, anxiety, and anger during Sectional frenzy.

In the final game of the Hammond Sectionals, Junior Bill Hertzfeldt outreaches his Clark adversary to gain possession of a jump ball.

Although representing twelve years of academic achievement and the end of high school life, a diploma also symbolizes the key to future success.

In her farewell address, Alicia Monteverde, AFS foreign exchange student from Argentina, expresses gratitude to all who made her stay in America possible.

Graduates gather at Hammond Center for commencement

With tassels turning from right to left, 414 seniors became alumni of Highland High School. Assembled in the Hammond Civic Center, graduates contemplated "The Challenge Of Inner Space," the commencement address presented by Dr. John Emens, president emeritus of Ball State University. After the invocation, Valedictorian Laraine Dunning and Co-Salutatorians Jena Preissler and Deborah Ross addressed classmates during the exercises held on June 5. With the white rose as their flower, the Class of 1970 selected the motto, "In This End Is Our Beginning."

Listening to the commencement address by Dr. John Emens, president emeritus of Ball State University, graduates reflect upon the past four years.

Led by President Mike Roche, Valedictorian Laraine Dunning and Senior John Benedict, the Class of 1970 begins commencement exercises.

Through visual aids, Senior Pam MacDonald reports to her psychology class about the pseudo-science of numerology.

Prepared to take notes, Junior Sharon Decker listens to a lecture on the colonization of America during U. S. History class.

Third hour government class holds mock election

Mr. Gregory Petrin's third hour government class involved themselves in the state elections by holding a mock election on November 3. As the only requirement to vote, students registered two weeks before the election.

Employees of the Lake County Welfare Department visited economics classes as guest speakers. Highland High graduates, having been to Vietnam, related their experiences to government and history students.

An eighteen foot map of the United States, photographed from a satellite, aided the students of the geography program in their course of study. World-wide airplane hijackings and other current events composed the primary topics of discussion in the world problems class.

Seniors enrolled in psychology presented oral panel discussions on dream analysis, spiritualism, numerology, and other related pseudosciences. In sociology, students studied the population explosion, religious and racial minorities, and organized class research projects. Films and charts supplemented lecture material.

At the mock election, Seniors Joan Mallett and Elaine Noonan explain to Senior Dave Kvarta the correct voting procedure.

Geography instructor Mr. Jerry Hedges explains to a group of students about the land surface of Minnesota, as photographed from a satellite.

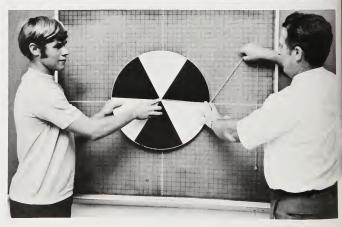

ROTC cadets visit air force bases in South Bend, Aurora

As part of an expanded program, ROTC cadets toured Wheeler Air Force Base, South Bend Bendix, and the Aurora Flight Control Center to gain a better understanding of flight principles and aviation equipment. Each cader also experienced a familiarization flight at the Griffith air field. Attempting to learn more about the complex areas of space, ROTC flights viewed the films "Of Lights and Lasers" and "A Trip to the Moon," presented by the Illinois Bell Telephone Company. Major McWilliams of the Grissom Air Force Base explained to the cadets the "Human Factors in Aviation."

Use of scale drawings, proofs, and solid three dimensional figures aided the geometry classes in studying the required theorems and postulates. Several students enrolled in the mathematics program visited the computer center at Purdue University Calumet Campus, while other classes received special representatives from the Illinois Bell Telephone Company. The guest speakers discussed with the students the new computer age and the future it offers.

In his explanation of trigonometry concepts to Senior Jim Tarbuck, Mr. Leroy Cable uses the unit circle to better emphasize his point.

With the aid of a model airplane, Major Preston Phillips awaits a cadet's question on the changes of aircraft design over the years.

Standing at attention during the national anthem, an ROTC color guard presents the flag at every home football game.

Representing the Chemetron Corporation, Mr. John Carroll performs cryogenics experiments to explain effects of low temperatures to ROTC classes.

In sales merchandising, Junior Sherry Bennett demonstrates the advantages of using an osterizer in food preparation.

While typing a business letter during class, Senior Lois Lebryk concentrates on accuracy as well as increased speed.

With the use of a calculator, Senior Jean Svabik works to complete an assignment in business machines class.

lighted the distributive education classes. Activities for the year included monthly window displays and major displays at Christmas and Easter. Fourteen seniors gained on-the-job training in marketing, merchandising, and the distribution of goods and services by working at Highland businesses.

New teletrainer and IBM transcribing equipment aided the students in clerical practice. Mrs. Clavier, public relations representative from Illinois Bell Telephone, and Mrs. Cleft, employment representative, spoke to the class. Business students also traveled to the Purdue Computer Center and the Illinois Bell Telephone business offices.

Typing classes received thirty new electric typewriters as well as new electronic calculators. Students obtained more experience by working in a secretarial pool for the school staff. Many recorded daily accuracy on forms supplied by the graphic arts department.

After observing the changes in a burning candle, Junior Steve Huffman writes his first lab report for chemistry class.

In an experiment involving the metric system, Mark Coscione, junior, uses the low balance beam to measure the weight of an assigned object.

Science department improves with new methods, equipment

With the expansion of the science department, new spectrophotometers, along with gas chromatography, nuclear radiation and pollution analysis equipment added to the necessary facilities needed for the physics classes. New movies, slides, and transparencies also aided these students in their course of study.

Through a new method of teaching, biology classes progressed at individual speeds. With this technique, the students took the test whenever they felt they could pass it with the grade of a "C" or above.

Chemistry students observed the chemical reactions of their experiments in scientific "mini-labs," while the earth science classes visited the Planetarium in Chicago.

Preparing to answer a question on the process of mitosis, Sophomore biology student Debbie Lewis becomes astonished at the condition of her book.

Spanish program offers new course; 43 students enroll

With the addition of the one year course of Conversational Spanish, forty-three students acquired terms necessary for everyday speech. Other Spanish classes studied the language by the audio-lingual method of listening to tapes.

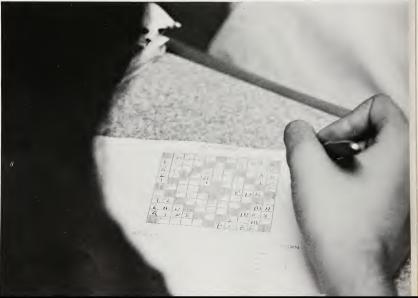

Second year Latin students oriented their studies toward individual research projects on the Roman house, the calendar, and the Roman Senate. The first year classes concentrated on mythology, beginning with the "Trojan War."

Sponsored by the American Association of French Teachers, the Realia Exhibit provided French classes with displays of the cultural aspects of France. Over spring vacation, many students traveled to Canada.

Senior Barb Probst, foreign exchange student from Germany, informed German classes of the way of life in her country. Students then gave individual reports on German culture.

In an effort to break away from routine work, French students on all levels attempt to complete crossword puzzles — mazes of words and definitions.

As a new one year course, Conversational Spanish opened to all students. Senior Debbie Jonaitis practices Spanish sayings before her class.

By identifying the subjects in the visual aids, German student Bob White, sophomore, learns his vocabulary for a quiz.

Correcting vocabulary errors on his theme, French 5-6 student Tim Rodeghier, junior, consults his dictionary before handing in his assignment.

Photography students construct scrapbooks, exhibits

Enrolled in the advanced journalism class, seventeen photography students worked with the cameras, chemicals, and additional dark-room facilities. As a cumulative project, the student photographers displayed mounted shots in the form of a scrapbook. At the annual Quill and Scroll Banquet on April 2, these students exhibited their outstanding work of the year.

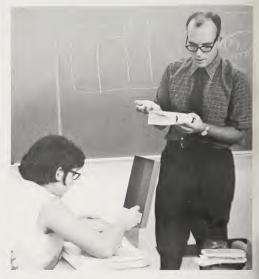

Concentrating on the basics of newspaper production, the beginning journalism classes increased their understanding of the press by touring the Times building. Group critiques of area publications also added to their analysis of the newspaper. While discussing yearbook techniques, journalism students constructed sample signatures modeled after the SHIELD.

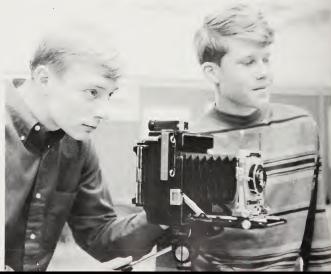

As the class increased, the seven students in the debate program studied the fundamentals of persuasive speaking. To aid in this study, the students participated in team debates.

With the use of facial expressions and gestures, drama students acted out scenes from assigned scripts. Members of the drama class also joined in the cast of the school plays.

While Mr. Larry Stuber, debate instructor, quotes a source to her, Senior Jill Okamoto prepares to file it for use in her next debate.

Working with still-lifes, Juniors Mark Niemyski and Brad Shropshire, photography students, begin a shot which will soon appear in their scrapbooks.

By comparing pictures to their reproduction quality, Sophomore Dana Ganos, Junior Pat Gargano and Sophomore Nancy Coolidge work to complete a journalism assignment.

As his thoughts drift away from the topic being discussed in English class, Senior Joe Kras creates an image on his vocabulary book

Carefully measuring out ingredients, Sophomore Seena Day explains to her speech class how to make cookies as she demonstrates the process step-by-step.

Grammar emphasis replaces one novel in English classes

Placing more emphasis upon grammar instruction, sophomore English teachers eliminated the study of the novel The Good Earth. Junior and senior English students wrote themes and journals and analyzed such required books as The Old Man and the Sea and Lord of the Flies.

By sending class themes to the Purdue University College of Education, English teachers enabled Purdue's Advanced Composition classes to gain experience in the methods of grading high school papers.

Seventeen seniors composed the world literature/creative writing class. These students discussed ballads and foreign writing styles. After writing a Christmas short story, the seniors attempted a simple book-binding project.

Speech classes utilized new tape recorders and audio-visual equipment in developing voice projection and dramatic techniques. Field trips to Chicago television stations allowed speech students to view the proper use of the basic rules of public speaking.

By again analyzing the required novel The Old Man and the Sea, Junior Pat Langel prepares for her English test.

Advanced art student Senior Jim Courtright displays his creativity by painting a life-size picture as an independent study project.

Home economics classes design floral centerpieces

While on a field trip to Hitzeman Haus Florist, home economics students learned various table decorations and techniques of designing centerpieces of real and artificial flowers. In the meat department of Strack and VanTil's supermarket, foods classes observed the process of slicing and packaging beef.

Cooking lab facilities increased with the addition of three new ranges. To explain the operation of these ovens, a representative of the NIPSCO Gas Company visited the school.

Films and charts assisted the students in the clothing classes. A fashion show at the end of the year enabled students to display their finished outfits.

Projects of the craft classes included ceramics, weaving, and sculpture. All students contributed to the Christmas exhibit at the town library and to the school exhibit during May. Five independent study students worked all year on one type of craft.

Due to the larger stage in the new auditorium, glee clubs helped to present the operetta "Carousel" in May. They also participated in the fall, Christmas, and spring concerts.

> After sewing the side seams, Senior Cheryl Stofko, clothing student, begins to baste the zipper in her jumper.

As Mr. Gordon Wilder directs them, students in beginning chorus practice one of their selections for the fall vocal concert.

Preparing the ingredients in foods class, Juniors Lynn Rentschler and Marie Stivers measure the flour needed to make donuts.

Drafting teacher Mr. Tom Johnson assists Sophomore Bill Walsh by indicating to him a technical point on a drawing problem.

In advanced metals, Senior Dennis Schwerin cuts a piece of metal with the use of the oxyacetylene torch.

Testing a tube on the oscilloscope in the E.T. room, Mr. John Gianotti demonstrates the basic process to Sophomores Craig Lightcap and Al Jaras.

Electronics students wire model houses, display equipment

WCAE TV studio and Ford Motor Company served as the locations for the electronics classes' field trips. In advanced E.T., students wired models of houses, whereas beginning classes displayed test equipment.

While the graphic arts classes printed programs for athletic events, beginning technological drawing students studied the basics of mechanical design. The advanced drafting class worked with complex machine drawings.

Displays of ignition systems and analysis of pollution devices composed activities for the power mechanics classes. Metal shop students welded and also worked with the lathe and the foundry. Upholstery became a unit project for the Woods 2-3 classes, while advanced students built a "L'il Red Barn" toolshed.

By smoothing the surface of the wood in the planer, woods student Don Boswinkle, junior, prepares the material for his project.

Before starting his assigned exercises, Junior Gary Hamilton warms up on the trampoline by practicing free-style falls during gym class.

During an in-class baseball game, physical education student Marlene Fauth, sophomore, hits the ball for a single.

Gym students acquire one full credit; summer school employs 33 instructors

Due to a new curriculum, physical education students received one full credit each semester. New text books provided gym classes with information on the history and execution of sports. Besides participating in gymnastics and modern dancing, students practiced exercises for reducing weight. Swimming classes learned basic strokes as well as life saving, diving, and water safety.

After a two week vacation, over 1100 students began eight weeks of summer school with thirty-three teachers leading the classes. Math 1R, a new course on the basics of mathematics, combined with algebra, geometry, and general math to constitute the math curriculum. In computer programming, students worked as long as eight hours a day to complete the required time of eighty hours.

Speeches from insurance men and policemen, team teaching, and movies aided the 384 students enrolled in Driver's Education to learn the vital rules of safe driving. Out on the road, students practiced these rules behind the wheels of 1970 Fords and 1970 Chevrolets.

In addition to hooking rugs, arts and crafts students wove baskets and created independent study projects. The government and economics classes used library materials in order to complete notecards and outlines for the research topics of their choice.

Enrolled in the summer school program, a Typing 1 student practices his newly-learned skills before starting a timed writing.

As Junior Dennis Latta and Sophomore Steve Miczalek look on, Mr. Porter Evans, summer school gym instructor, records Senior Gary Ciochina's effort in the broad jump.

Running downfield, tackle Pete Severson, senior, positions himself in order to throw a successful block on a Munster Mustang.

Gridmen produce winning season with 7-2-1 final record

Producing the second best football record in the history of the school, the 1970 Trojan gridmen finished their seasonal campaign with seven wins, two losses and one tie. With a 6-1 conference record, the squad completed the season in second place of the newly-formed Lake Suburban Conference.

An early season victory over the favored Lake Central Indians kept the Trojan spirit alive. After losing to rival Munster, the team went on to win six consecutive games. This streak broke the old record of five consecutive wins. The gridmen also topped the record of maximum points scored in a game by beating the Griffith Panthers 64-7.

As Junior halfback Fred Gnerlich sweeps around the end with the ball, Junior Mark Justak moves in to block an opposing tackle.

Bolsega, Gnerlich lead running attack at halfback spots

Halfbacks Senior Dave Bolsega and Junior Fred Gnerlich led the Trojans' running attack by scoring ten touchdowns and gaining 1,064 yards respectively. Playing the quarterback position, Senior Dave DeMuth passed for 1,075 yards and thirteen touchdowns. Senior Dell Williams and Junior Dave Devich proved to be leaders of the defensive squad. Devich netted 100 tackles and Williams showed outstanding ability under pressure. Chosen for the Lake Suburban All-Conference team, gridmen Bolsega, DeMuth, Devich and Williams served as representatives from the Trojan squad.

Head coach Ken Sypult and assistants Porter Evans, Paul Blake, Bob Dorn, and Pete Kokinda directed the 1970 football team to their final record of seven wins, two losses and one tie. This total, second best in the history of the school, fell short only to the 1960 record of eight wins and two losses.

> Smiling as the defensive squad holds the line against Munster, Junior halfback Mark Justak awaits the outcome of a Mustang punt.

Cross country team captures seventh at state finals

Completing the season with a seventh place finish at the state finals in Indianapolis, the 1970 cross country team compiled a conference record of fifteen wins and no losses. After capturing first place in the Lake Suburban Conference, the harriers also finished first at the Crown Point Sectionals. At the LaPorte Regionals, the squad seized a second place victory, losing first to Hobart.

Despite weather conditions, twenty-seven members of the cross country team practiced twice a day, before and after school. Workouts began August 15 and continued until the state finals on October 31.

The seven returning lettermen for the 1970 cross country team included Juniors John Bach, Dennis Bell and Bernie Zemen and Seniors Tom Brosseau, Jim Courtright, Ron Washington, and Tom Zatkulak.

Followed by Sophomore Jim Minard, Juniors John Bach and Bernie Zemen jog through their paces to limber up for invitationals competition.

At the Highland-LaPorte-Munster triangular meet, cross country squad member Tom Brosseau, senior, loosens up with warm-up exercises.

Tennis team earns 7-2 season record, first in sectionals

Trojan netmen highlighted the 1970 tennis season with a seven match winning streak. For the season, the team compiled a 7-2 conference record, the best in the history of the school.

Suffering their only two losses to Crown Point, 3-2, and to Munster, 4-1, the Trojans moved into the Hammond Sectionals, where they tied with Crown Point for first place.

Seniors Dave Sawtell and Romie Sidabras advanced into the doubles competition at Gilroy Stadium in Gary for the Regionals. There they captured third place.

Six lettermen returned with six other players to form the 1970 tennis team. To prepare themselves for the first match of the season against Hobart on September 9, the netmen began practices August 15 with one-hour workouts twice a day.

With a smile of victory, Senior Romie Sidabras shakes the hand of opponent Rick Badovinch, whom he defeated during the Highland-Griffith match.

Trojan cagers take first in conference with no loss record

After playing a 20 game schedule, the varsity basketball squad totalled a 14-6 season record. In the new Lake Suburban Conference, the Trojan cagers seized a first place standing with an undefeated seven win-no loss record. In conference play, the basketball team downed top contenders from Calumet, 86-74, and Lake Central, 63-50.

As highlights of the season, the basketball team tallied high-scoring wins against Bishop Noll, 93-78, and a 96-76 victory over Terre Haute Garfield. This 96 score now stands as the fieldhouse scoring record.

Team practices began October 15 and the season opened with an 86-75 win over Morton.

Ferree takes lead in scoring attack with 19.2 average

Four experienced lettermen, Seniors Dave 30sega, Dave DeMuth, Butch Ferree, and 3ruce Luyster, returned to aid the basketball eam in accumulating a 14-6 season record. With a 19.2 point average, Ferree led in the coring department. Next came DeMuth with 16.5, followed by Junior Bill Hertzfeldt's 13 point average.

A balanced team with no one member dominating and a high percentage of baskets from the field counteracted the squad's lack of height. The varsity Trojan cagers combined their talents to secure a first place position in the Lake Suburban Conference with a 7-0 undefeated season in conference play.

Coached by Mr. Darrell Morken, the 1971 varsity bettered last year's record of 13-8.

Passing his opponents from Morton, Junior Dennis Bell speeds the ball down court in order to successfully carry out an offensive attack.

In the locker room of the new fieldhouse, head basketball coach Mr. Darrell Morken tapes Senior Butch Ferree's foot before pre-game warm-ups.

Despite the attempted block of an opponent, Senior Dave DeMuth follows through with a lay-up shot to add to the Trojan score.

In an unassisted effort, Sophomore Bill Mayer begins a two-point play during the January 22 junior varsity basketball game.

Thinclads capture first in conference with 14-0 season

For the second consecutive year, the 1970 Trojan track squad captured the Calumet Conference crown. The thinclads ended the season with a total record of fourteen wins and no losses in dual meets and they also seized a first place in five invitationals. Members of the track team went on to take the sectional and divisional titles.

After placing first at both sectionals and regionals, Dave Bell represented Highland at the Indiana State Track and Field Meet, held in Indianapolis. He finished second with the time of 4:16.8 in the mile run. At the state competition, Dave received the Robert Hinshaw Award, given annually to the athlete who displays the best mental attitude.

Senior Ron Washington advances around the track on the inside lane to begin the second lap of his mile run at the Hammond meet.

As a member of the Highland track squad, Senior Rich Sampias exhibits his skill while attempting to win the long jump competition.

Track team breaks past school records in vaulting, running

Assisted by Coach Michael Poehlein, the 1700 thinclads surpassed previous track and field records. At the Calumet Conference Divisionals, Junior Ted Crawford broke the 12'6" pole vaulting record with a 12'9" clearance. With a time of 9:41.1 in the two-mile run, Senior George Novosel topped former records.

Competing against Gary Wirt in the Highland Relays, the mile relay team set a new record. Mike Young and Dave Bell, and Juniors Dennis Bell and Dave Brant finished their run with a time of 3:27.45.

As the season ended, four thinclads, plus the mile relay team, qualified for the regionals. Jovan Vercel and Senior Pete Severson entered the shot put event, Steve Wargo in the pole vault, and Dave Bell in the mile run.

Carefully executing a flop in the high jumping event, Junior Robbie Robbins assists in increasing the Trojan lead.

Pitching, catching help Trojan Nine to Conference third

With pitching and catching as their strong points, the 1970 baseball team finished third in the Calumet Conference. After winning games against conference competitors Crown Point, Lake Central, and Merrillville, the Trojan Nine completed the season with an 11-2-1 overall record. The diamondmen scored eight wins and two losses in conference play.

Power hitting by Don Devich, .370, and Senior Dave Bolsega, .333, added to the strength of the offense, Seniors Ray Croker and Mike Urban contributed to the defensive cause with their pitching abilities. Representing Highland as a member of the All-Conference team, Duane Goubeaux hit .323 for the season.

Organizations

While confusion dominates the atmosphere of a once-orderly club meeting, a maze of lively members embark on a creative endeavor. They revamp outmoded constitutions. prepare colorful displays, and wrap Christmas gifts for orphans. Different school organizations — honorary, service, language, career, and interest — form A MAZE OF CREATIVITY, motivating involved students to perfect their skills and to develop their abilities as future leaders. Resembling the uniquely convergent stones of a column, distinct individuals unite to achieve a common purpose. In a continually changing maze of student concerns, irrelevant clubs are dissolved and new ones are enthusiastically created. The youth of 1971 is inspired to work together, serve together, and create together in the maze of ORGANIZATIONS.

Key Club and Y-Teens combined their efforts in a car wash to provide money for their prospective clubs.

At Halloween time, Y-Teens visited St. Margaret's Hospital to donate coloring books and crayons to the children's ward. Their Thanksgiving activity revolved around a tour of the Lake County Home for the Aged.

Key Club also participated in many service projects. Selling peanuts, collecting food for the poor, building the town Christmas tree, and ushering at concerts comprised the agenda for the members. Initiation ceremonies took place at Teibel's Restaurant in October with Judge Frank Stodola speaking on "Law in Indiana." In the spring, members attended the annual Key Club Convention in Indianapolis.

Clearing tables is one of the tasks being performed by Key Club member Don Logan, junior, at the Kiwanis' Pancake Day on October 10.

To start the meeting, held twice a month in the library, Key Club members Bill Darchuk and Dave Bobalik, seniors, pledge allegiance.

After being passed as a club, Student Mobilization Committee meetings occur. HSMC President John Sawyer, senior, leads discussion on the East Pakistan tidal wave disaster.

Working with faculty advisor Mrs. Frances Dodd, drug abuse committee chairman Dan Haire, Junior Student Council member, designs publicity posters for the drug program.

Student Council votes HSMC new club for research, action on social problems

Performing one of the duties involved in Student Council, the 49 class representatives voted that the Highland Student Mobilization Committee could assume the level of a club.

With this new status, HSMC members formed groups for research and action on high school rights, drugs, the draft, Pakistan relief, and other controversial topics. After research, the action segment consisted of lobbying the Student Council, and then talking with the administration and the school board.

Along with planning new activities, Student Council also revised old ones. An open house on November 25 allowed college students to return to the school and enter senior classes for question-answer periods concerning college life. Inter-Club Council, a Student Council standing committee, initiated a system for financial assistance to needy clubs. Several Council members revised Homecoming activities, while others attended school and town board meetings.

After cancelling Mardi Gras, French Club planned other projects. Over Christmas, members helped a Hammond migrant family with donations of money, food, clothing, and toys.

"Brand 'Em With Defeat" won second place in club float competition for French Club. A foreign pen pal exchange and the selling of club charms became other activities scheduled by French Club.

At the end of the year, French Club awarded scholarships to two senior members planning to continue their French studies.

Spanish Club members planned a spring trip to a Spanish restaurant in Chicago. Senior Deena Schwamberger highlighted a meeting by talking about her trip to Mexico last summer. As part of the Indiana University Honors Program, Deena lived with a Mexican family.

American Field Service plans parties; German organizations initiate scholarship

American Field Service sponsored Barbara Probst as the foreign exchange student this year. As social events, AFS held an October birthday party for Barbara and an outdoor Christmas party. Money-making projects for the club included selling stuffed animals and banks. The funds from these activities went to the students who participated in the Americans Abroad or the Foreign Exchange Program.

German Club members, on a field trip in late October, visited Chicago's Germantown. As another activity, the club sold fresh holly and other Christmas decorations. The money earned went toward the German scholarship at the end of the year.

German Honorary Society consisted of eleven exceptional German students. The Museum of Science and Industry's "Christmas Around the World" display served as the location of a field trip. German Honorary Society, affiliated with Alpha Chapter of Delta Epsilon Phi, awarded books of culture to outstanding students. In May, the Honorary Society initiated ten new members.

Planning the AFS Christmas Party, President Debbie Wolak, junior, discusses the date and location of the event with club members.

FTA members hold paper flower sale, April 23 breakfast

To attain more student interest and participation in the club, Future Teachers of America limited its membership to only juniors and seniors. These members sold paper flowers during the week of March 22-26 as a fundraising project. April 23 marked the day of FTA's annual breakfast, which honored all high school and administrative employees.

Future Business Leaders of America sponsored both service and money-making activities. Before Christmas, members collected toys for needy children. Students sold calendars in November, and in April, they sold taffy apples. A representative from the Don Sawyer Business School addressed club members about the institution. At the FBLA awards banquet, students who contributed outstanding work received a pin or charm.

Science Club hunts fossils; MCC holds caramel corn sale

Science Club, Medical Careers Club, and Horizons in Science comprised the organizations with a scientific background. Being an honorary club, the HIS members passed written examinations before becoming initiated.

Science Club traveled to Various places of interest, including the Indiana Junior Academy of Science at Indiana State University. This Academy gave students opportunities to present projects in report form and receive recognition on a state-wide basis. A fossil-hunting trip to Illinois in the spring and a winter outing to Argonne National Laboratories completed the events on the club's calendar.

MCC aimed its itinerary to cover all careers available in medicine. Members toured St. Catherine's Hospital in East Chicago and the Trade Winds Rehabilitation Center to gain relevant information about future careers. As a money-making project, MCC members sponsored the annual caramel corn sale, January 11-15.

Sophomores Terry Cockrell and Mary Lawson work diligently to complete MCC's float "Victory or Bust," which won first place in the special entry division.

During the February 4 open house activities, FHA member Sophomore Linda Sacha serves coffee to English teacher Mrs. Gloria Johnson and Mrs. Richard E. Watson.

On designated Tuesdays during lunch hours, members of Future Homemakers of America sold fudge. Money made from the sales went to charity and to run the necessities of the club. For a service activity, the FHA girls involved themselves in the multiple sclerosis campaign. Social events included participating in a weekend ski trip, visiting Turkey Run, and holding Daddy Date Night on February 11.

Industrial Arts Club helped the community by setting up the Highland town Christmas tree. Members worked with Student Council in formulating plans for furniture to be placed on the outdoor courts. The club also planned tours of nearby plants and corporations.

At Daddy Date Night, Principal Mr. Robert Day presents FHA President Terri Reese with a charm in recognition of her winning the Betty Crocker Homemaker Award.

Before the Tuesday fudge sale, Sophomore Sue Williams prepares the ingredients at an FHA Monday night work session

Model Rocket Club members construct wind tunnel

Building a wind tunnel proved to be a major activity of the Model Rocket Club. The tunnel was used for practical theory application and for testing the stability of new rocket designs. During fair weather, the club held rocket launches on the athletic field.

With a thirty per cent increase in membership, the Distributive Education Club traveled to the Sears store in the River Oaks Shopping Center. DECA members conducted Friday donut sales and candle sales for Christmas, not only as money-making projects but also as monetary and educational exercises.

Sign Painters planned their events toward the commercial arts. With Homecoming and holiday decorations located in both school and town, members of the Sign Painters Club displayed their artistic talents.

In order to raise money as well as complete an exercise in monetary values, DECA club member Beverley

Breger, junior, sells Christmas candles.

Helping to set the school in the holiday spirit, Sign Painters decorate windows with traditional Christmas scenes.

Seniors Debbie Wargo and Ellen Gold show creativity as they work on a Trojan head for the DECA Homecoming entry.

Prior to a rocket launch, Model Rocket Club members Juniors Tim Rodeghier and Don Huffaker, and Senior Paul Balog examine a miniature scale Apollo rocket.

At the GAA Powder Puff football game, Senior Carla Schrock hands the ball off as Junior Nancy Halas attempts to grab her flag.

Relaxing at an informal 500 Mile Club meeting, Sophomore Bill Barnes, Junior Bernie Zemen, and Senior George Novosel listen to discussion of up-coming events.

Positioning herself for the correct stance, Senior Jan DeLauro begins her bowling game to earn GAA organized points.

GAA members hold Turnabout Dance, 'Powder Puff' game

With 170 girls, the Girls' Athletic Association reached a record-breaking membership. Besides participating in weekly activities to gain organized points, club members sponsored "The Days of Wine and Roses" as the Turnabout Dance on December 12. Seniors reigned victoriously in the annual Powder Puff football game with a 19-7 score, and the club honored members at the Mother-Daughter Banquet.

While some members worked in the concession stands during football and basketball games, other lettermen organized a booster section of their own. Club members also pulled the victory bell during the Homecoming parade.

After running 500 miles between November and February, thirty boys gained membership in the 500 Mile Club. Each member received a shirt and the first to reach the 500 mile goal earned a trophy.

As a member of the Lettermen Club, Senior Dan Gamaleri works in the concession stand during a home basketball game.

Assembled in the junior high gym, the junior varsity cheerleaders generate spirit among the fans at the Homecoming pep session.

As lettergirls and majorettes form a border, varsity cheerleaders lead the booster block in backing the Trojans to victory.

New sponsors aid president in organizing boosters

With the addition of one hundred new members, Booster Block worked toward promoting spirit among the spectators at all home games. The new sponsors, Mrs. Anne Mathew and Miss Kathy Holland, helped Senior Denise Nichols, president, to organize the unified block of girls in white blouses, gloves, and blue ties.

Selling baked goods, Homecoming mums, and spirit packets comprised the various moneymaking projects used to finance the Homecoming dance and new pom-poms for the lettergirls. Members of the block bought shakers and Trojan team buttons for Sectionals.

Spelling out Highland Trojans, the lettergirls sat in front of the block at every home game. For away games, the lettergirls alternated their dress for either Highland or for Trojans. In addition to sitting in front of the block, the girls coordinated pom-pom routines to the band's music and marched in the Homecoming parade on October 9.

Raising her pom-pom in anxiety, Lettergirl Janice Oliver, senior, tensely awaits the outcome of a freethrow in overtime. Before a freethrow during a basketball game, varsity cheerleaders Gretchen Fox and lan DeLauro, seniors, execute a new mount.

As a sophomore on the varsity cheerleading squad, Carol Miller leads the Booster Block and other fans in sideline yells.

Increased squads allow cheerleaders to execute mounts

Increased by one, from four to five girls, the varsity cheerleading squad executed more mounts and acrobatic formations at all the athletic events. After attending the annual Cheerleading Clinic at Indiana University, the cheerleaders returned with new ideas for standard cheers. More sideline yells, along with completely new cheers, allowed the squad to better promote spirit throughout the entire school and community.

Two new members enlarged the junior varsity cheerleading group to six. Aside from leading yells at junior varsity games, the six girls of the J.V. squad designed signs and hoops for the varsity cheerleaders.

Aroused by the Homecoming spirit, varsity squad member Junior Cindy Tegtman anxiously awaits the outcome of a touchdown play.

Juniors varsity cheerleaders Karen Kundrat, Lisa Regnier, Marcia Rincon, Kathy Phillips, Carol Gaydos, and Captain Kathy Davidson lead yells at all J.V. games.

Performing one of her duties as captain, Senior Judy Silverman starts cheers when promoting the spirit of the crowd.

New jumps allow varsity cheerleaders Jan DeLauro, Cindy Tegtman, Judy Silverman, captain, Carol Miller, and Gretchen Fox to improve standard yells.

Working with the band and majorettes, twirlers Sophomore Sue Johnson, Senior Deena Schwamberger, and Junior Pam Ciochina perform at all football halftimes.

After a week of practice, Senior Dana Hartman leads the majorettes in the halftime entertainment of the Highland-Griffith football game.

Before starting a halftime routine, majorette Lee Ann Mercer, junior, watches the action of the season's first basketball game.

Majorettes perform routines at halftime; use torches, flags

Practicing every day, the majorettes and twirlers worked together for improved unison and timing. While some majorettes wore the white and gold military uniforms, the remainder donned blue and gold skirts and sweaters. With burning torches and blue and gold striped flags, the majorettes provided a new look at halftime performances.

Gold sequined uniforms with matching mitts and high white boots constituted the new outfits of the three twirlers. The twirling of hoop batons and flags became an addition to routines executed by the twirlers.

Miss Kathy Holland, acting as choreographer, directed the twenty-three majorettes and the three twirlers in their routines.

During the "Halftime Highlights" show, presented by the Marching Trojan Band, majorettes Joy Lourik, Brenda Jones, and Joan Kelley perform.

Rinehammer acts as Highland's first drum majorette

Directed by Mr. David Spittal and Junior Debbie Rinehammer, Highland's first drum majorette, the 94 members of the Marching Trojan Band participated in all halftime shows of the football season. Performing to such songs as "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head" and "Son of a Preacher Man," the band traveled to area marching contests.

Dressed in uniforms of blue and gold, the Marching Trojans received second place in competition at both the Ball State Band Day and the NISBOVA Marching Contest. The band practiced every night after school in preparation for these events.

After football season, marching band members formed the stage and concert bands. These bands accompanied the different vocal groups at the Christmas concert and provided music for the Highland Junior Miss Pageant.

During band class, Senior Patti Cameron practices with the brass section for the Friday night performance.

Drumming out the beat to "Son of a Preacher Man," Senior Fred Rodgers participates in the band's halftime entertainment.

Before every football game, Junior Debbie Rinehammer, Highland's first drum majorette, leads the band in the national anthem.

As an extra-curricular activity, band members provide musical entertainment during the intermission of the annual Junior Miss pageant.

While they follow the maze of notes before them, members of the marching band display their creative talents in a complex formation.

Music department incorporates speech in choral concerts

As a first for the music department, vocal groups incorporated dialogue into their concerts. Mr. Larry Stuber, speech instructor, worked with those students interested in speaking parts.

Music director Mr. Gordon Wilder organized the Chamber Singers, a group composed of eight girls and eight boys. Wearing blue and yellow gowns and body shirts, the Chamber Singers coordinated their songs to dance routines.

Other vocal groups, the Highlanders and Hi-Notes, participated in the school's fall, Christmas, and spring concerts. They also performed in the Spring Musical and at the Choral Festival in Crown Point.

Choir members visited neighboring college campuses to view various types of concerts, and on September 26, they traveled to Chicago to see the play Fiddler on the Roof. Assisted by the other vocal groups, Choir climaxed the year with the production of Carousel for the annual operetta on May 6.7, and 8.

Vocal groups aid the choir in the production of the operetta as Mr. Gordon Wilder assists Junior Dave Hruska in learning his lines.

Drama Club uses auditorium facilities in second production

With the opening of the new auditorium, the activities of Drama Club increased. In March, young actors and actresses performed You Can't Take It With You as their first presentation in the new building. Earlier in the year, club members presented the comedy involving illegal business practices, The Solid Gold Cadillac.

Drama Club also sponsored a December field trip. Members viewed the dramatic production "Will Rogers USA" at the Chicago auditorium. The Thespians' main activities included an initiation ceremony and an awards banquet in the spring for promising drama students.

Emphasizing the importance of clarity in speech, the National Forensics League opened for drama students interested in expanding their skills. Competition with area schools enabled the members of Forensics to practice speaking abilities in all areas.

Sophomore Sandi Lassanske practices a speech for the Munster meet while using gestures to emphasize her point.

Beginning his pantomime by calling the bull, Junior Joe Schulz portrays the bull, then violently reacts to being gored.

State universities set scene for 1970 summer workshops

Traveling to Ball State University, staffers from both the yearbook and the newspaper attended the summer journalism workshop. While the TROJANAL ad editor learned selling techniques, SHIELD editors acquired methods for improving copy and layouts in the 1971 book.

At the Thespian Convention at Indiana University, Thespians shared ideas through plays and special assemblies. While drama students attended the Drama Institute at Ball State, music workshooppers traveled to IU and Indiana State to attain new skills.

Three Student Council members represented Highland at the council workshop at IU. Also at Indiana University, the Girls' and Boys' State delegates further developed their knowledge of Indiana government. As a required project, the six representatives campaigned for a desire political office.

Girls' and Boys' State delegates Seniors John Sawyer, Lois Lebryk, Joan Boswinkle, Judy Silverman, and Jim Budzinski attended the institute at Indiana University.

After Juniors Pam Ciochina and Ann Rezny and Seriors Deb Porter and Janice Kwolek attended a drama institute at Ball State, Sentor jill Okamoto traveled to Muncie for a debate workshop.

Yearbookers Junior Becky Watson and Seniors Cheryl LaBounty, Linda Eldredge, Denise Klein, and Jayne Seketa and TROJANAL staffer Linda Stanley traveled to Ball State.

News Bureau staff increases to twelve; Quill and Scroll holds banquet April 2

Writing stories on the backs of football and basketball programs added a new responsibility to the News Bureau staff. Increased in size to twelve members, due to the disbanding of EXCELSIOR, the staff sent out weekly news stories to area newspapers. After planning the program and writing the scripts, staffers appeared on WCAE-TV. Along with Mr. John Butler, News Bureau's new advisor, two staff members attended Rotary meetings every Wednesday to report service club news to local papers.

On January 13, 24 journalism students became members of Quill and Scroll in a traditional candlelight ceremony. The initiates maintained a "B" average, completed two semesters of journalism, and held a position on a publication for one semester.

New sponsor Miss Pamela Poracky helped members in selecting Teibel's Restaurant as the location of the Quill and Scroll Banquet. The April 2 event served as a time for the promotion of students to their positions for next year. The staffers who contributed outstanding work to their publication received recognition, along with the winner of the Allen J. Warren Award for the year's best journalist.

During the formal initiation ceremony, Quill and Scroll president Larry Bishop, senior, presents a charm and a membership card to a new member.

News Bureau columnists and reporters Bobbie Sivak, Luanne Murray, Gary Ban na, Peggy Holinga, and Nancy Halas review stories before submitting them to area papers.

Staffers Patti Sheets, Copy Editor Julie Bruner, Barb Girman, Sandy Baxter, and General Manager Linn Kundrat confer with News Bureau's new advisor Mr. John Butler on the format of a football program.

As Senior Linda Stanley fits ads into the prepared spaces, Juniors Judy Gierut and Linda Ferree paste-up the ad section for printing.

While Junior Joe Wolf and Senior Karen Balbo file cancelled checks from advertisers, Senior Vicki Guy prepares the Homecoming TROJANAL for a school in the exchange program.

Preparing their individual sections, page editors Joan Strange, Barb Dvorscak, Mary Kozel, Tom Fistrovich, Marge Kolodziej, Judy Bartholomew, Rick Kendrick, and Sandy Smiley work to meet the weekly deadline

As new members of the TROJANAL staff, columnists Dave Elswick and Doyle Banks, seniors, express personal views in their columns of the paper.

Two new positions aid TROJANAL reorganization

Major editors John Sawyer, managing editor, Rebecca Russum, editor-in-chief, and Deena Schwamberger, copy editor, discuss the column-inch allotment for the next TROJANAL issue

Two new positions added to the staff aided in the reorganization of TROJANAL. First semester editor advanced to senior editor second semester. Various duties of the post included editing special newspaper issues and assisting the three major editors in the production of the weekly newspaper. One business manager worked with the business and financial records for both the newspaper and the yearbook.

Among the improvements, TROJANAL changed from the method of letterpress printing to the quicker, more efficient offset printing process. This photographic procedure enabled the newspaper to reproduce better pictures.

Through the cooperation of the TROJANAL staff and members of area publications, the newspaper's exchange program increased. With this enlargement, the staff introduced a new distribution plan to the student body. Students received their papers sixth period Friday morning instead of during homeroom.

New layouts, special effects transform 1971 SHIELD

New techniques proved to be the most prominent changes in the 1971 SHIELD. Five column layouts replaced the traditional three column style, division pages utilized special effects, and the two hundred page book emphasized more and larger photographs.

As money-making projects, SHIELD staffers sold pictures during lunch hours and held two autograph dances. The Senior dance took place on May 31, while the all-school event occurred on June 2. The selling of plastic book covers and refreshments also increased SHIELD funds.

Staff members concentrated on improving SHIELD sales and distribution. Students paid only one installment of six dollars during three two-week periods in the months of September, October, and November.

The 1970 SHIELD received an A+ rating from NSYA for orginial development in opening and for a superior advertising section.

Advertising and business staffers Senior Diane Crowe, Junior Debbie Ceroni, and Senior Karen Balbo accept Senior Deb Simich's $6.00 payment for her '71 SHIELD.

Before making a final decision on cover materials, SHIELD major editors Jayne Seketa, Cheryl LaBounty, Linda Eldredge, and Becky Watson show their ideas to advisor Miss Pam Poracky.

SHIELD section editors Seniors Mar_{*}, Mesterharm, Debbie Manich, Mickey Baker, Denise Klein, Joan Boswinkle, Lynn Keller, and Juniors Julie Yuhast, Carmen Socin, Janet Schlueter, Beh Carroll, Laura Rodriguez, Rick Flurka, and Tom Arnold write copy for their specific section.

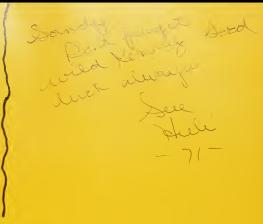

Juniors Sue McFarland and Nancy Oliver, assistant layout editors, with Pam Ciochina and Sue Schrepfer, assistant copy editors, make a sign to promote SHIELD sales.

Personalities

As maze-like columns expand with extensive construction, the enrollment of creative personalities multiplies. Together the faces and actions of administrators, faculty, and students enliven hallways and classrooms, like the stone enhances the column's perplex design. Exhausted from float work sessions, ardent sophomores, juniors, and seniors surmount the entangling maze of chicken wire and kleenex. During "Spirit Week", class members plaster walls with bright and imaginative signs, promoting Sectional frenzy in the community. The MAZE OF CREATIVITY has grown to include more students and activities. yet each individual retains his own identity, whether deciding on his courses or selecting his career. The youth of 1971, through humorous and heart-breaking moments, is inspired to mature and to create new friendships in the maze of PERSONALITIES.

In charge of student activities, Assistant Principal Mr. Michael Keppler lines up Homecoming entries at the Plaza Lanes for the parade.

Mr. Merlin Clinkenbeard, assistant principal, relaxes at a football game — a break from his busy, daily routine.

Administrators work together in meeting demands of school

To meet the demands of a larger student population, three assistants aided Superintendent Mr. Allen J. Warren in his duties of running the school system. Replacing Dr. Donald Kaupke, Dr. Robert Schrenker worked with the faculty in areas pertaining to curriculum. Dr. Dean Speicher recruited teachers and negotiated contracts, while Mr. Clyde Sumner handled the business affairs of the school system. School board members Mr. Ralph Petiti, Mr. Robert Ross, and Mr. John Terpstra dealt in matters of budgeting and school-community relations.

Managing the administration of the school, Principal Mr. Robert Day received help from two assistants. Mr. Merlin Clinkenbeard and Mr. Michael Keppler handled attendance, discipline, and school activities.

Performing one of his special duties, Mr. Robert Day, principal, addresses graduating students and their guests at the commencement exercises.

With the expansion of the Highland Public School System, Mr. Allen J. Warren's responsibilities as superintendent increase in size and complexity.

Dealing in matters of the budget, school board members Mr. John Terpstra, Mr. Robert Ross, and Mr. Ralph Pettit also promote school-community relations.

Assistant Superintendents Dr. Robert Schrenker, Dr. Dean Speicher, and Mr. Clyde Sumner perform specific duties while working in their Education Center offices.

Faculty attends drug abuse orientation November 17

With an early dismissal of students, the 82 faculty members attended a two-hour drug abuse orientation on November 17. The Highland Police Department worked with Mr. Jon Hendrix, science co-ordinator, and Dr. Robert Schrenker, assistant superintendent of curriculum and instruction, in arranging the program.

Every Thursday night, the teachers relaxed at the Plaza Lanes. Organized into different leagues, the faculty members bowled against each other.

Members of the Future Teachers of America Club honored the faculty at a breakfast in the cafetorium on April 23. Along with coffee and rolls, each teacher received a carnation.

Assisted by a computer, the four counselors compiled grades and schedules. Other responsibilities included aiding students in planning for their future and arranging for college representatives to visit the school.

Performing one of her duties as head secretary, Mrs. Evelyn Downing delivers the morning announcements.

Both hired this year, Mrs. Betty Fejes mimeographs test papers for a teacher, while Mrs. Gerry Schmidt sells basketball tickets to students.

School secretaries increase to five, aid faculty, students

Adding Mrs. Betty Fejes and Mrs. Gerry Schmidt to the staff, the number of school secretaries increased to five. While Mrs. Fejes helped teachers by mimeographing tests, Mrs. Schmidt aided Mr. Keppler by selling game and bus tickets to all athletic events.

Treasurer Mrs. Laurene Coles organized the bookkeeping and handled all money affairs, as Mrs. Evelyn Downing acted as head secretary. Mrs. Grace Riechers, while working in the guidance office, assisted the counselors by keeping cumulative records of all students.

Besides cleaning the inside of the school, janitors kept the outside grounds attractive through their gardening.

Fourteen cooks prepared the daily lunches, served the meals, and kept the kitchen in efficient running order.

School nurse Mrs. Ida Deceuster filed student medical records and in January, organized tuberculosis tests.

After finishing her bookkeeping work, Mrs. Laurene Coles reviews a student's academic record with Mrs. Grace Riechers in the guidance office.

Maintenance workers Mr. Ray Walker, Mrs. Tillie Kaczmarski, Mrs. Clara Rooks, and Mr. John Swienconek take time from their cleaning duties for a friendly chat.

'Blow Their Minds' places sophomores first in Homecoming

After the expected confusion of being sophomores vanished, the Class of 1973 began work on their first Homecoming float. The class entry "Blow Their Minds" captured first place in the float competition.

Along with the class sponsors Mrs. Beverly Petrng that Mr. Herbert Schmidt, the sophomore class, consisting of 566 members, organized the traditional sweatshirt sales. October 12-16 marked the dates for the sale, but due to increased interest, the Class of '73 also sold the sweatshirts, jackets, windbreakers, and polo shirts in March.

Sophomores sponsored two other traditional events. Class funds increased by $110 at the Mr. Football Dance on November 13, and on May 15, the class held the annual car wash before the Junior-Senior Prom.

Juniors hold traditional Chili Supper January 22

Juniors started working during the summer in preparation for Homecoming on October 9. After holding two class meetings, they chose "Pirate Their Goal" for their float theme. With hours of making tissue flowers and lettering their entry behind them, the moment for reward came. Judges announced the Class of 1972 as the second place winners in the class float competition.

September proved a busy month for junior members of the Girls' Athletic Association. Every night after school they spent an hour practicing for the annual Powder Puff football game. However, the seniors overpowered them with a 197-score.

January 22 marked the date of the Junior Class Chili Supper. Held before the Highland-Lowell basketball game, the supper opened to all. Profits from the dinner aided the juniors in financing the Junior-Senior Prom on May 15. Juniors decorated the Knights of Columbus Hall in East Chicago to carry out the theme, "Over the Rainbow."

After weeks of organizing the January 22 event, Chili Supper chairmen Lisa Regnier, Pam Domsic, and Robbie Robbins taste the final product.

Seniors enter 'Hang M High' in Homecoming parade

As their final year at Highland High began, the members of the Class of 1971 started on their Homecoming entry. Although seniors did not place in the class float competition, their Homecoming effort, "Hang M High," depicted one aspect of "The Great West."

After weeks of learning new defensive plays and offensive strategy, senior members of GAA challenged the junior team in the annual Powder Puff football game. Cheered on by senior boys, the senior girls defeated the juniors and won the game with a 19-7 score.

As the year progressed, college-bound seniors traveled to university campuses and also filed forms for admission. Results from scholarship programs and achievement tests aided these students in their selection of schools.

As a unique feature in the Homecoming parade, the senior class used live people in their float "Hang M High."

With a maze of layout supplies, copy blocks, and pictures, the 1971 SHIELD staff had one purpose: to create an entirely different yearbook, one that would depict the school year in an exciting and informative manner.

A bright gold cloth cover embossed with a deep brown column-like design introduced the theme, A MAZE OF CREATIVITY. Mr. Jack Bundy of S.K. Smith Company, Chicago, Illinois, assisted the major editors with advice on textures, binding, and colors.

Prepared pages were sent to Charlotte, North Carolina, where Delmar Printing Company type-set and printed the interior of the year-book. Editors worked with Mr. Ed Hackleman, the company representative, in basic planning.

Different sizes and faces of Optima type highlighted the copy throughout the 200-page book, which was printed on a paper stock of 80 pound Warrens enamel dull. Replacing the traditional three-column layouts, major editors selected a completely new style. In opening section, five column layouts were used, and a modified five-column plan characterized the remainder of the book.

Creative use of color, special effects, and art work added brightness to the 1971 SHIELD. Aztec gold end sheets matched the cover, along with the 100% gold screen employed on division pages. To further emphasize the theme, a maze-like steel engraving process was applied on division page pictures. Overprinted onto the gold, the art work consisted of a black outline of the cover column.

Six color pictures taken by the photographers of Walinger Studio, Chicago, Illinois, dominated the first signature. Walinger's also furnished senior portraits, underclassmen pictures, division page pictures, and many of the opening section, academics, athletics, organizations, and personalities photographs. Senior Larry Bishop was responsible for adpictures and for the rest of the opening, classroom, club, class, and sports candids.

Marked with the words "editor-inchief," the envelope contained two round white aspirins. They were given to me by last year's editor as a symbol of the headaches and drudgery that make up each yearbook page, that lead to missed deadlines, unfinished homework, and red eyes from lack of sleep. The outward maze of pictures and copy are the result, but within lies an invisible, inner maze of endless effort. I would like to thank the students, teachers, and administrators for being the essence of this book, and the entire staff for being its energetic creators. A special thanks goes to my understanding family and to Cheryl, whose constant dedication meant much more than words can convey. I would also like to express my gratitude to Miss Poracky for her encouragement and guidance, for inspiring me to seek perfection. The process of creating is a deeply emotional one, one in which each person gains something and loses something else. From my work on the 1971 SHIELD, I have gained a feeling of self-satisfaction. But I have also gained a feeling of emptiness, for I have lost something which was a living part of me this year. The precious moments of tears and laughter are gone, leaving only a maze of warm memories and two tiny white aspirins . . .

Junior Pam Sleeman executes a back flip during the gymnastics exhibition at the halftime of the intramural all-star game, February 6.

Stopping to look over his guide sheet for the Thursday open house activities, Key Club member Sophomore Ben Coppage gives a tour of the building to his mother and father.

At the dedication of the Lon P. Monbeck Auditorium, School Board President Robert Ross honors the retired superintendent of schools with a memorial plaque.

After the February 6 Highland-Merrillville game, Senior Brian Bradshaw drums up the beat to "Mame" during the student talent show.

Dedication program for school facilities occurs February 4-7

Dedication ceremonies of new school facilities took place over a four day period, February 4-7, 1971. Student participation included a water ballet, and diving, gymnastic, and sports exhibitions. Following Thursday's open house for parents, Friday's program consisted of pre-game ceremonies in the fieldhouse. Guest speaker Mr. Phil Eskew, Commissioner of the Indiana High School Athletic Association, presented the keynote address. A pool ceremony, an intramural all-star game, and a student talent show completed Saturday's schedule. Dedication of the Lon P. Monbeck Auditorium and a reception for the former superintendent of schools on Sunday, February 7, ended the building dedication program.

Overflowing with youthful vitality, Dave McRoberts, junior, expresses his delight at the closing of another school day.

Despite hard hours of practice, creating can sometimes lead to defeat or difficulty.

A maze of equipment is left behind, but not for long...

Student leaders fail, gain new enthusiasm in maze of creativity

An empty classroom waiting to be filled with analytical minds, a deserted football field waiting to be enlivened with feverish bodies, an unfinished float waiting to be molded with skilled hands . . . Discouraged by temporary failure, weary minds, bodies, and hands have momentarily abandoned the MAZE OF CREATIVITY. In the darkness and silence of the night, they rest and regain new enthusiasm to create again. Everyday is a complicated maze of experiences, opportunities, and problems, just as the column is a maze of merging stones. By combatting pollution and setting up drug abuse programs, the youth of 1971 is inspired to mature, to distinguish between the conflicting paths of the world; a leader is a creator, and creating is part of the search for identity in the winding maze of life.

Involved in the endless process of creating, Senior Barb DeGraaf uses a maze of splattered red to communicate her outlook on the Vietnam War.

Indestructable and infinite, the columns are always present as a foundation of the school, as an inspiration for creative learning within. Each separate stone, each separate person, cannot escape. A MAZE OF CREATIVITY. He must awaken to perpetuate his search of unexplored pathways, to conquer the unknown distance...
